

What is the best book you have read this year? Write a letter persuading us to include your chosen book on a reading list for other students.

You could include some of the following ideas:

- Explain why this book should be read by people of your age.
- What would they learn from it?
- Would a teacher enjoy teaching it or reading it with their class?
- Sell it to us! Make it your priority to persuade me to read your chosen book.

After you have written your letter persuading us to include your book in our reading list, why not have a go at one of the following activities?

- Redesign the book jacket and write the blurb for the back.
- Write a newspaper report for a key event in the story. Think carefully about the way you lay out the report – include a headline and subheadings where appropriate.
- Design a poster advertising the book.
- Make a collage representing a character or an event from the book.
- Draw one of the characters from the book and label it with words and phrases which describe that person.
- Write an acrostic poem about one of the characters or places in the book.
